

Okay, now what?

You've changed every light bulb in the house. You recycle your bottles, cans and paper. You even bought a hybrid car. But you have this feeling it's not making enough of a difference.

You're right.

You watch as our leaders struggle to adopt strong measures on climate change, sustainability and environmental health in the face of vigorous, organized opposition from various interest groups, and you think they may not be able to solve these problems in time.

Right again.

The good news....there is something else you can do.

Welcome to HowGreenIsMyTown.org. It's a virtual toolbox for those of us who want to move the ball forward on the most critical issues of our time.

Whether you're an individual, a family, a small business, a member of a local civic group or neighborhood association, scout leader or elected official, HGIMT gives you hundreds of concrete steps you can take right now - today - that can have a real, measurable and significant impact on our collective future.

To find out how small actions at the local level can have a big impact on global issues, log on to our new greenweb today!

Connecting the dots for a better world...

HowGreenIsMyTown.org

"How Green Is My Town?" is a project of Grassroots Environmental Education, a non-profit organization.

© 2009. Permission to reproduce for advocacy granted.

For more information, please visit our web site www.grassrootsinfo.org.